

Portable Gas Detector By TechTools

Product Description Detect potentially dangerous propane, butane, acetylene and methane (natural gas) leaks with this lightweight Portable Gas Detector. This pocket-sized gas detector emits an audible alarm and activates a three-stage LED indicator when the four gases are detected at levels greater than 5% Lower Explosive Limit (LEL) This gas detector will detect potential gas leaks in pipes, fittings, valves, gas storage tanks, propane barbecue grills, home appliances and hot water heaters.

I have owned several of these in the past and have found them to be very reliable (as long as you don't drop them!). The one drawback is that an eyeglass type screwdriver is required to remove the battery compartment cover. The Detector is easy to test by briefly turning on any gas burner. If your unit doesn't sound an alarm then request a replacement from the seller. They do work!

I know this in an inexpensive unit, but I'd expect it to work. And parts of it do. The lights work. The beeper works. Those all work well. All the time. Whether you are near gas or not. It always thinks there's a leak. There's a review on this unit elsewhere on that mentions the unit is prone to drift and can be recalibrated by turning a dial on the pc board. But it still didn't detect gas when I did that. Waste of money. For those that got one that actually works, it probably won't work long.

The plumber was gonna charge 600 to just find the leak. After I bought this, I found the leak and fixed it myself. See all 51 customer reviews...
